Musician and ethnomusicologist Hankus Netsky will present an appreciation on the work of Ben Gailing, the Boston radio personality known to local audiences for sixty-seven years as "Der Freylekher Kabtsn" (The Happy Pauper).

Born in 1898 in Krasnopolye, a small town near Bialystock, Poland, Gailing came to the U.S. as a teenager and acted on the New York Yiddish Stage. Moving to Boston in 1931, he became a fixture on Boston's Jewish cultural scene for over six decades, directing Yiddish theatre productions, producing shows featuring prominent New York Jewish entertainers, and continuing his weekly Jewish radio broadcasts until his death in April of 1998 at the age of 101. He also served as cantor of Temple Beth Abraham in Canton for over thirty years.

Netsky's lecture will feature clips from Gailing's radio broadcasts and live performances of some of his musical compositions. The program is a collaboration between the Vilna Shul and the Discovery Project, a Jewish cultural recovery project of the National Yiddish Book Center in Amherst, MA.
